

Clubs and Elections Around the World

Nepal – Child Workers in Nepal Concerned Centre Child care homes have established Aflatoun clubs among the children staying there. If problems arise in the home, the children solve these through club discussions where they seek solutions to the problem. They also decide together how to use their money, whether it is for a future study tour, to buy clothes, or to give support to someone.

Sri Lanka – Coalition for Educational Development

Children are learning that fundraising through recycling can be fun. The child clubs collected and recycled used polythene waste, like covers of plastic cups, plastic bottles, etc., and have helped rid Ratnapura district of 30,000 kilos of used polythene waste.

Honduras – ChildFund

Child participation through school governments is included in the country's education curriculum. Aflatoun child clubs integrate this in their activities to create democratic processes and keep track of their savings. Members are seated in groups, with their club name displayed on their table.

Honduras and Peru – ChildFund and Vision Solidaria Girls from the Emprendiendo programme in Peru decided they wanted to learn about the democratic processes experienced by students in Honduras, so they initiated a call to Honduras. Both sides were excited to share experiences and information.

Jordan – Jordan River Foundation

Children from different grades meet every week at the Queen Rania Family and Child Centre to carry out club activities: artistic workshops, talks, and learnings with the centre’s facilitators.
